Signs of Bed Bugs

1. Inspect your mattress in particular along seams, around buttons and handles and increases.
2. Check the box spring (if you have one), any rips in fabric will make this an ideal hiding place for them to live and breed. It also makes treatment for bed bugs more difficult.
3. Have a close look at sheets and other bedding.
4. Closely inspect cracks and crevices in walls, floors around window frames and door frames.
5. Our vampire friends are nocturnal i.e. they only come out at night and will often hide out in really obscure places during the day so check smoke alarms, clocks, behind picture frames, behind peeling wall paper etc.

What are you looking for?

Quite simply you are looking for live bugs but more than likely you will find dark brown/black facial marks, discarded skins which have been cast as bugs mature and grow and blood splats where bugs may have been squashed on bed linen.

In times gone by insecticides were used to kill these pests and they did so very successfully. However, such chemicals can be very toxic and harmful to health and in some cases the bugs began to build up resistance.

Six Treatment for Bed Bugs Tips:

1. De-clutter the room, place unwanted items such as newspapers, books etc. in sealed plastic bags and dispose of them.
2. Place all bed linen, clothing etc. into plastic bags which you should seal tightly (to prevent the spread of the infestation) and remove to your laundry area. Launder everything possible at high temperatures and tumble dry again, at the highest temperature possible. Items unsuitable for laundering should be placed in your drier on a high heat for at least ten minutes. Items which cannot be treated in this way may possibly be steam cleaned. All laundered items should be placed in clean, sealed plastic bags to prevent re-infestation.
3. Vacuum EVERYTHING, mattress, carpets, chairs, sofas, soft furnishings and furniture (inside and out.) Don't forget to attack any cracks and crevices using the tools on your vacuum – it may also be wise to seal up any such areas. Empty your vacuum cleaner immediately whilst in the infested room. Seal the bag and dispose of it.

Bed Bugs are very serious and expensive to treat. If you think you may have bed bugs contact the office immediately.
